

1 26. A method for reporting on network analysis, comprising:
2 collecting network traffic information utilizing a plurality of information
3 collectors installed in computers distributed among a plurality of zones;
4 receiving the network traffic information collected from the information
5 collectors associated with each zone at an information collector manager; and
6 generating a report on the network traffic information associated with a selected
7 one of the zones.

1 27. The method as recited in claim 26, wherein the information relates to wireless
2 network traffic.

1 28. A computer program product for reporting on network analysis, comprising:
2 computer code for collecting network traffic information utilizing a plurality of
3 information collectors installed in computers distributed among a plurality of zones;
4 computer code for receiving the network traffic information collected from the
5 information collectors associated with each zone at an information collector manager;
6 and
7 computer code for generating a report on the network traffic information
8 associated with a selected one of the zones.

1 29. The computer program product as recited in claim 28, wherein the information
2 relates to wireless network traffic.